

Jörg Focke, Speaker of the Asklepios Future Hospital

Jörg Focke, who studied law, started his professional career as an IT-consultant within the field of pharmacy. From 1990 until 1994, he worked for the German Employee Academy as a secretary for education and was primarily responsible for the IT coordination for the federal state Mecklenburg-Vorpommern. After three years in the State Office for Information Technology in Hamburg, he now operates for the Asklepios clinics. During this period as an IT-architect, he could gain experience concerning processing, editing and availability of data in the clinical everyday life. Since the launch of the Asklepios Future Hospital Programme in 2006, he functions as the Speaker of the Asklepios Future Hospital.
