

Biography Dr. Dierk Heimann
medesso GmbH, Mainz

Dr. Dierk Heimann (43, married, 3 children) studied human medicine in Germany's Giessen as well as in Israel's Tel Aviv and got his doctor degree for investigating care and outcome effects of software based patient information systems at the University of Mainz during the late 90ies.

Today he is head of an investor driven project called medesso which develops virtual medical intelligence solutions for decision support systems.

This idea started to fascinate him during his days as VP Medical Affairs / Communication for CompuGROUP Holding AG between 2006 and 2010. Before that he was head of journalistic medical content and internet companies of German Television ZDF and has published more than 20 guidebooks dealing with health topics for patients.

International audience can watch Dr. Heimann's weekly health show "fit und gesund" on DW-TV (Deutsche Welle TV, ARD) which is broadcasted worldwide since 2008.

If you want to find more about Dr. Heimann, please visit www.dw-world.de/fitundgesund